

FLYERS CUP 1989

Scholastic Championship

Hockey Central

March 21, 1989

Dear Parents, Friends & Participants:

On behalf of Hockey Central I would like to thank you for your support of this year's 10th Anniversary Flyers Cup Scholastic Championship. Your support of this exciting tournament has helped make this one of the most prominent scholastic tournaments on the East Coast of the United States.

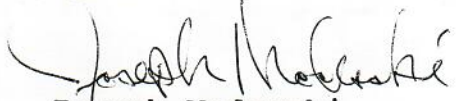

Your attendance has helped the growth of area high school hockey in numerous ways. Financially, the gate goes directly to each league and team involved in the tournament. This money has gone to support the cost of ice rental, team expenditures, and college scholarship funds.

With the growing attendance every year, you have drawn more national attention to the boys who have participated in high school hockey. This attention has created school pride, publicity for the sport, and has helped the athletes in their pursuit of playing hockey on the collegiate level.

The Flyers Cup has been the highlight of Hockey Central's 13 year history, and is just one of the many programs and publications we have developed over the years; some of these are : Learn to Play Clinics, The College Planning Seminar, The Elite Players Clinic, Flyers Players Clinics, The College Hockey Guide, High School Hockey AT The Spectrum, Developmental Programs, and our Coaching Series Program.

We at Hockey Central thank you for your support of the Flyers Cup and of our other programs, for it is your unselfish support that helps youth hockey in the Delaware Valley.

Sincerely,

Joseph Moderski

Bruce Craig: “The Hockey Man”

Even with all the sponsorship and all the enthusiasm of the hundreds of children involved, Hockey Central is only as good as the instruction those kids are given on the ice. In that case, Hockey Central is very good.

Thirty-six-year-old Bruce Craig is in his second year as Hockey Central's head coach. His dedication to kids and hockey in that order is a prime reason why the organization continues to be successful. For a man who also coaches a college hockey team, that is no easy task. Craig's workload at Hockey Central is both heavy and crucial.

leaves that makes the system blossom and bear the sweet fruit of skilled young players. All the equipment in the world won't do anyone any good if there aren't eager, well-schooled bodies inside it.

Craig's commitment to Hockey Central is put into perspective when you take into consideration that he is also the head hockey coach at Villanova University. Between teaching five-year-olds how to skate and 20-year-olds how to run a power play, Craig's daylong shifts often begin at 5 a.m. He doesn't climb back over the boards and take a breather until 10 p.m.

“I’m responsible for all our on-ice programs,” Craig explained. “I do our youth clinics, run practices, teach some hockey in classroom situations, instruct the psychology of the game, drills, everything.”

Maybe that’s the best way to explain Craig’s role at Hockey Central: everything.

“It’s so important to instruct these kids properly,” he said. “We start them so young. We have learn-to-play clinics for kids from 5-to-9 years old in four different city rings. It’s a good program. All they have to do is pay $30 for their skates. We give them their equipment for free. At the end of their season they have an option to buy their equipment at a reduced rate.”

If the corporate sponsorship and the equipment it provides is the root of Hockey Central, Craig’s patient instruction is the network of branches and

“The main thing we stress with the hockey program at Villanova,” he explained, “is grades. Basically, what we do is give a kid a chance to have some more fun playing the game of hockey. While he’s at it, he’s getting a top education. They have to provide all their equipment. We’ll give them sticks, but that’s it. We’re a small Division III program. We’ll get our players tutors, whatever it takes, but they have to realize they are here for an education. They’re not going to the NHL.”

“This is my first year at Villanova,” Craig said. “I have some definite goals for the program. What I really want to do is qualify for the NCAA playoffs. Our schedule is a little weak right now, but we’re close, real close. I don’t think we’ll get a bid to the playoffs this year, but we’re in great shape to improve. We won 10 of our first 15 games this year and our leading scorer and our third-leading scorer were both freshmen. One thing we are going to need next year is a goalie. I have a senior and a sophomore splitting time this year. I have to replace the senior. We have four or five local players but most of our players are from the New England area. Right now we have six or seven boys from the Detroit area talking to us, too."

Craig is right at home working on hockey rinks in the Northeast and the Main Line. After growing up in Toronto and Montreal, he graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1975. He played hockey at Penn and has coached various hockey clubs in the area since then.

"I have coached the Little Flyers and Germantown Academy," Craig said, "but when Hockey Central came around with this position, I took it. I jumped on it. I really love working with the little kids. The schedule isn't easy, I have a lot of long days, but most of the Hockey Central stuff is out of the way by Thanksgiving."

There is a common thread that runs through all Craig's coaching, from the kindergarteners to the marketing majors. It's called fun.

"That's my biggest thing," he revealed, "I want the kids to play with enthusiasm. You have to make it fun for them. I try to teach all the kids that the game is only 60 minutes long and out of that you may only play ten or 12 minutes. You have to make the most of it. You have to have fun and enjoy what you're doing. It's the same for the college kids. They are just little kids in big mens clothes. It's all the same."

Asking Craig which level of coaching he likes best is like asking a kid in a Baskin-Robbins what kind of cone he wants.

"I love 'em all," he said. "The 13-14-year-olds are the toughest. That's a tough age for anything. You just have to learn how to handle them. That's really all coaching is at any level, handling people correctly no matter what their personality or experience.

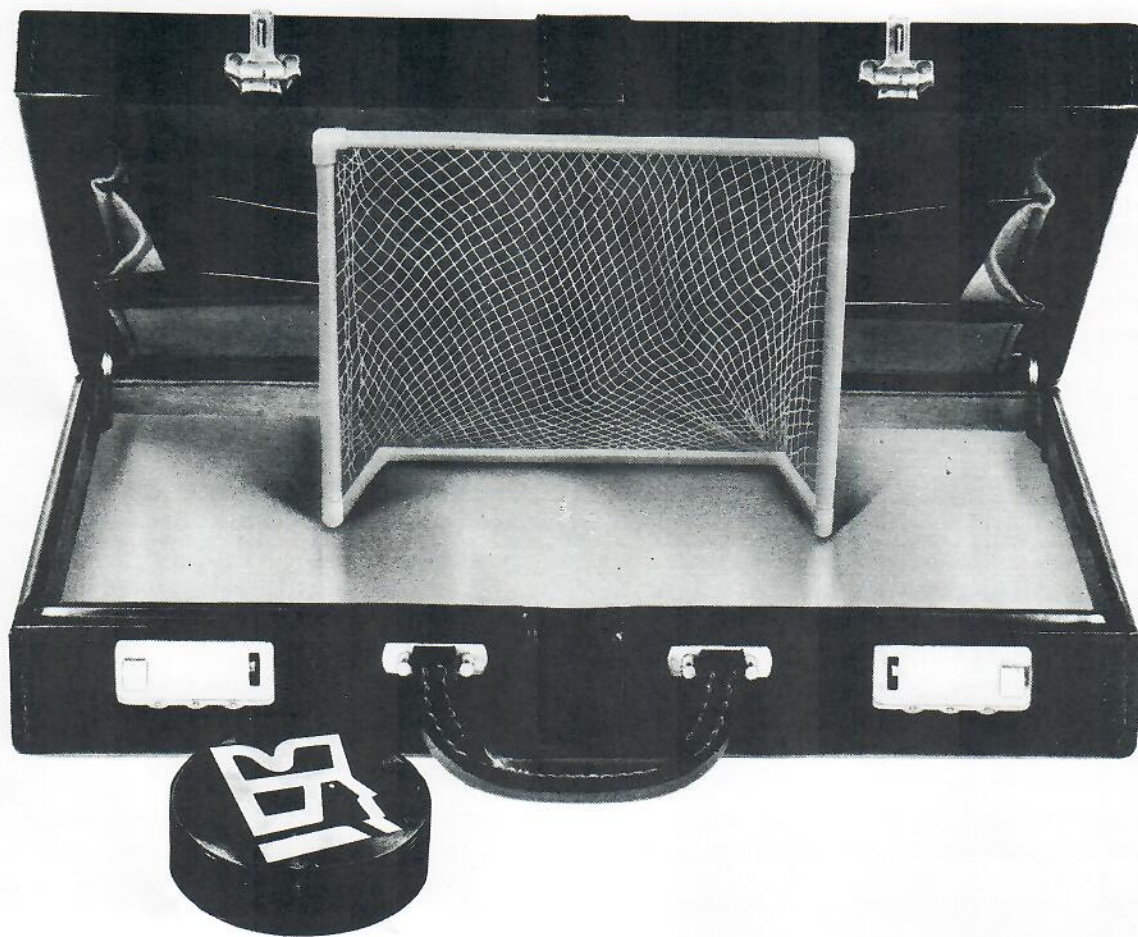

"Just the kids themselves are a vastly different group. The 13 and 14-year-old kids always think you're picking on them. That's a time in your life when you're undergoing a lot of growth, physiologically and physically. It's a time of adjustment for them and you have to take that into consideration when you're working with them. The thing I try to do with that age group is make sure I'm on the ice doing the same thing they're doing. Sometimes they need a good kick in the ass, but, hey everybody does.

"The real little guys are cute, you know? But you have to start them off correctly, too. They all want attention and direction, the 5-year-olds and the college seniors. They want it for different reasons, but they're all important reasons. It's crucial that a coach understands that."

This one does.

The Airlites have landed

Nothing equals the exhilaration of flying on new "Airlite" Roadrollers.

Airlites' aluminum frame gives you better maneuverability and an unbridled freedom to move like the wind.

And Airlites roll with precision, on boots engineered by the world's foremost designers from Bauer.

The new Airlite chassis also gives you the smoothest ride possible on abrasive resistant "Excel" wheels, with whisper quiet NMB bearings.

Not only do Airlites let the good times roll, but they also add a lot of fun to keeping fit and trim.

There's a Roadroller for every active lifestyle, from Airlites to sporty Pro Racers to motoring on your Malibu Cruisers.

Ask to see the new Roadrollers at your favorite sporting goods store.

FLYERS CUP HIGH SCHOOL PATRONS PROGRAM

Through this year's edition of the Flyers Cup Program Book, Hockey Central has developed a program to help all area high schools support their teams, whether they be a varsity or club sport. Each person listed below has graciously donated $10.00 to support the hockey team of their choice. This donation goes directly to help teams cope with the raising costs of hockey. We at Hockey Central commend these patrons, and hope that such support will continue to grow in future years.
